Part I Classification of Accounts Guide – General Introduction

I.1 Foreword

This guide is intended for all institutions completing a range of Bank of England statistical returns. It describes the two most important systems of classification used in compiling economic and financial statistics in the United Kingdom – the economic sector classification, and the industrial classification.

This guide is intended to serve both as an introduction for newcomers and as a source of reference. The nomenclature in the sector classification is in line with international standards – in particular, the European System of National and Regional Accounts (abbreviated to 'ESA10'). In addition, the analysis of industrial activity is in line with the 2007 standard industrial classification of economic activities (SIC) introduced by the Office for National Statistics.

Those without knowledge of accounts classification are recommended to refer to the 'Guide to Classification' (Part I Section 3) which takes the reader through the main questions to be answered to help classify accounts correctly.

The system of classification used in this guide is solely for statistical purposes. Parts II to IV of the guide describe the main aspects of the classification system in more detail, including lists of examples of institutions, or a web link reference, for many categories.

I.2 An introduction to the classification of accounts

Sector and industrial classification

To understand the underlying behaviour which is reflected in movements in economic and financial statistics, it is necessary to group those entities engaged in financial transactions into broad sectors with similar characteristics. Two of the systems of classification used in UK official statistics are based on analysis by sector and industry. For consistency, it is necessary to classify most banking accounts – deposits, loans and advances, etc. – according to both sector and industrial classifications. For example, BAE Systems plc is listed as a 'Non-financial corporations other than public corporations' under the sector classification and as part of the aerospace equipment manufacturing industry (within item 4F in forms AD and AL, which covers transport equipment) under the industrial classification. The main exceptions to this are accounts for non-residents (see part III, section 10) and for authorised banks and building societies in the UK ('monetary financial institutions' – see part III, section 2). These categories are not included in the industrial classification. First, classification by sector groups entities whose general economic and financial behaviour is similar. A primary distinction is made between entities resident in the UK and those resident outside the UK ('non-residents'). Part II of this guide provides definitions of residence and illustrative examples.

The main sectors for UK residents are monetary financial institutions, the public sector and the private sector (or 'other UK residents'). Monetary financial institutions include the central bank (the Bank of England), firms with a permission under Part IV of the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 to accept deposits (other than (i) credit unions; (ii) firms whose permission to accept deposits is only for the purpose of carrying out insurance business; and (iii) friendly societies), and European Economic Area (EEA) firms with a permission under Schedule 3 of the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 to accept deposits through a UK branch. This includes UK banks and building societies and the UK branches of inwardly passporting EEA banks. Further details appear in part III of this guide. The public sector consists of central government entities, public corporations and local government. Central government comprises government departments and quasi-government entities. Public corporations are corporate entities which are owned and controlled by the UK central or local government; in general they comprise corporations set up by Parliament and nationalised corporations. Local government includes new unitary authorities and other councils (for example, county, district, parish, and town) and their departments, and those entities which have taken over the assets and functions of the former metropolitan councils. 'Other UK residents' is further sub-divided: Financial corporations other than monetary financial institutions include other financial intermediaries, (such as securities dealers and non-bank credit grantors), insurance companies and pension funds and financial auxiliaries (such as entities regulating financial activities, fund management companies), which also embrace financial quasi-corporations. Non-financial corporations other than public corporations, to which are added non-financial quasi-corporations, are privately owned corporate entities located in the United Kingdom, for example BP plc. Other sectors are individuals and individual trusts, unincorporated businesses other than unlimited liability partnerships, and non-profit institutions serving households. Further details and illustrative lists, or a web link reference, appear in part III of this guide.

The non-resident sector covers all non-UK residents, including all financial and non-financial institutions incorporated in the Channel Islands and the Isle of Man, and branches of UK and other institutions that operate here.

This system of sector classification is used in the following Bank of England forms: BT, BE, BN, DQ, CA, CC, CL, CE, PL, BG, CX, WO and ER.

Second, the industrial classification groups entities according to their main industrial or service activity (without regard to ownership or who operates them). Only UK residents are covered, excluding monetary financial institutions (UK banks and building societies). This system follows the 2007 Standard Industrial Classification issued by the Office for National Statistics. Activities are divided into 18 main groups: full details appear in the summary in Part IV, section 1. Detailed lists of the industries, trade etc. to be included in each group are provided in Part IV, section 2. Since this classification is based on industries without regard to who owns or operates them, industrial establishments owned or operated by the central government are classified in the same way as those privately-owned and should not necessarily be included under 'public administration and defence'

This system of industrial classification is used in Bank of England Forms AD and AL.

I.3 A Guide to Classification

How do you classify an account? The following questions provide a checklist to help classify accounts according to both sectoral and industrial criteria. The first four questions, 1.3(a) to 1.3(d) relate to all classification queries. These are followed by specific questions on UK residents and non-residents, sector and industrial classification, and some examples of difficult cases.

General

I.3(a) Do you have the complete name of the account?

This is important because, for example, Tesco plc and Tesco Personal Finance Ltd are classified differently. Whereas Tesco plc is a non-financial corporation incorporated on the UK mainland, and hence a UK resident, Tesco Personal Finance Ltd is a UK bank. A different example relates to the suffix to the company name (denoting the type of incorporation); 'Ltd' and 'plc' would mean that an account should not be classified under individuals and individual trusts, nor under unincorporated businesses - however, care should be taken to discover whether the enterprise is a public corporation¹ or a privately-owned company.

I.3(b) Are you working with up to date documentation?

Check the dates in your documentation. A list of banks authorised to carry out deposit-taking in the UK are available on the Bank of England's website at www.bankofengland.co.uk/pru/Pages/authorisations/banksbuildingsocietieslist.aspx.

Any change to this guide will be notified through the issue of periodic statistical notices that are sent to all reporting institutions. These notices are available on the Bank's website at www.bankofengland.co.uk/statistics/Pages/reporters/snotice/default.aspx.

I.3(c) Is the account holder a United Kingdom resident or a non-resident?

You should read Residence, (Part II). For statistical purposes the United Kingdom excludes the Channel Islands and the Isle of Man. Non-residents can often be identified by their address outside the UK mainland, or if they have special tax status. Pay particular attention to companies which operate both inside and outside the UK; the UK part should be classified as 'UK resident' and the overseas operation as 'non-resident'. This applies to banks, many of which have branches both on the UK mainland and outside the UK, as well as to some other financial intermediaries and non-financial companies. If the account is held by a non-resident go to question 1.3(d); if it is held by a UK resident go straight to question 1.3(e).

Non-residents

I.3(d) If the account holder is a non-resident, is it a non-resident deposit-taking corporation, a central monetary institution, a non-resident deposit-taking corporation in the same group or non-resident non deposit-taking corporation?

See Part III Appendix 3, for non-resident central monetary institutions (CMIs) listed by area. Part V, section 2 provides an alphabetical list of countries. For a definition of intra-group business with non-resident deposit-taking corporations, refer to part III, section 10(a)(i). Guidance on classifying non-residents non deposit-taking corporations, such as most international organisations is detailed in Part III, section 10(b). See Appendix 4 of Part III for a list of international organisations and additional reporting guidance.

United Kingdom Residents

I.3(e) If the account holder is a UK resident, is it a 'UK bank' or 'UK building society'? You should refer to the Bank of England's most recent Bank List, available at www.bankofengland.co.uk/prd/Pages/authorisations/banksbuildingsocietieslist.aspx. Not all UK banks have the word 'bank' in their name. A full list of UK building societies can be found at www.bankofengland.co.uk/prd/Pages/authorisations/banksbuildingsocietieslist.aspx.

Note: Banks and building societies are not included in the industrial classification.

If you are classifying an account on Forms BT, BE, BN, CX, WO, DQ, CA, CE, ER, PB and PL follow the instructions under the sector classification. For Forms AD and AL follow the instructions for the industrial classification.

Sector Classification

I.3(f) If the account holder is a UK resident, but not a bank or a building society, is it in the 'public sector'?

You should see parts III.4 to III.6. If the account holder is in the 'public sector', you will need to decide whether it is part of 'central government', 'public corporations', or 'local government'. Be careful over the following pitfalls:

- (a) the lists referenced in part III.4 to part III.6 are not exhaustive
- (b) companies which have 'plc' or 'Ltd' in their name are not necessarily in the private sector
- (c) some companies may have been privatised.

Further guidance on classifying public sector account holders can be found here

www.ons.gov.uk/economy/nationalaccounts/uksectoraccounts/datasets/publicsectorclassificationguide.

I.3(g) If the account holder was not identified in I.3(e), is it in 'other residents'?

'Other UK residents' is sub-divided into: financial corporations (including unlimited liability partnerships) other than monetary financial institutions; non-financial corporations other than public corporations; individuals and individual trusts; unincorporated businesses other than unlimited liability partnerships; and non-profit institutions serving households. Formal partnerships, which are not incorporated as companies, are treated as financial or non-financial quasi-corporations – see part III, sections 3 and 7 for further details on 'other UK residents'. Limited partnerships and limited liability partnerships which derive their status from the Limited Partnerships Act 1907 and Limited Liability Partnerships Act 2000 respectively should be classified as corporations, financial or non-financial. Some Limited companies may be Non-profit institutions serving households.

Beware of the following pitfalls:

- (a) the lists, and references to lists, of financial corporations other than monetary financial institutions (in section 3) and non-financial corporations (section 7) are intended to be illustrative, not exhaustive.

(b) the aggregate of financial corporations other than monetary financial institutions (including financial quasi-corporations), in the sector classification, is only approximately equal to the aggregate of items 15, 16 and 17 in forms AD and AL (the industrial classification); see CA IV - Industrial Classification.

(c) certain subsidiaries of non-financial corporations (see paragraph I.3(j) in this section) may be other financial intermediaries or insurance companies, or vice versa, and should be classified accordingly.

Industrial Classification

I.3(h) Do you know what the main industrial activity of the account holder is?

If yes, the account holder can then be located under one of the 17 main industrial activity headings (excluding individuals and individual trusts) - see part IV, section 2. To make certain of the industrial classification look up the account's Standard Industrial Classification (SIC) code from the alphabetic section of the 'SIC 2007 - (version: August 2009)' available from the Office for National Statistics website www.ons.gov.uk/methodology/classificationsandstandards/ukstandardindustrialclassificationofeconomicactivities/uksic2007.

The SIC codes are listed in ascending order within the detailed schedule of the new reporting categories of forms AD and AL - see part IV, section 2.

For example, a commission agent (i.e. an agent in one country for a buyer in another) might be expected to be classified under Item 17 'Activities auxiliary to financial intermediation': but first impressions are not always correct, and in this case would be wrong. In fact, commission agents (SIC 46.1) are included under wholesale trade on a fee or contract basis, within item 7B 'Wholesale trade, excluding motor vehicles and motorcycles'.

I.3(i) If you do not already know the main industrial activity of the account holder, how do you find out what it is?

You can do this by looking up the company website. The 'about us' section should give a detailed account of what the company does. This information can then be used to map to a SIC code using the ONS SIC 2007 document detailed above.

Difficult cases

The following cases take as their example lending to companies in different circumstances. The same basic principles may be used to determine the sector and industrial classification of deposits.

I.3(j) How to classify accounts of company groups

It is important to identify the full name of the account in the case of an account of a company group. An account should be classified according to the particular company that holds it. Although the group as a whole may have a wide range of activities, the individual companies within it may have specific activities that are easily classified. The main problems arise in the case of accounts of a holding company within a company group [see sub-section I.3(k)], or of a single company engaged in a wide range of activities [see sub-section I.3(m)].

I.3(k) How to classify accounts of holding companies

'Holding companies' come in a variety of forms. In some cases the holding company may be no more than a 'shell' company which wholly owns all the other companies in a company group, but plays no other role in the group. In other cases the holding company may play an active part in one of the activities of the group, either by being involved itself in the main activity of the group, or by actively acquiring companies, managing them, perhaps restructuring them and possibly selling them thereafter. Some holding companies may manage the group's liquidity and borrow in order to on-lend to the other companies in their group, and may in effect be the financing arm of the group.

Bank holding companies should be classified within financial corporations other than monetary financial institutions on form BE and in item 15H in forms AD and AL (see also part III, section 3, which contains a list of bank holding companies).

Financial holding companies, that is, companies where the predominant activity of the group of companies they control is financial, should be classified as financial corporations other than monetary financial institutions on form BE.

Classification of accounts of financial holding companies on forms AD and AL is more complex. As a starting point, all accounts of financial holding companies should be included in item 15M. If it is known that the holding company is borrowing specifically in order to on-lend to a particular group company, the account should be classified to the sub-category of that group company. If not, the account should be classified according to the predominant activity of the group that the holding company controls. If the predominant activity cannot be identified, then the account should be classified in item 15M.

Other holding companies and head offices, that is, those which are neither bank holding companies nor financial holding companies, should be classified as non-financial corporations other than public corporations, on form BE.

A more subjective approach is needed to the industrial classification of other holding companies (64.20/1-4), and we request that reporters allocate these on a best endeavours basis. Holding companies may borrow for a specific member of the group or for the group's main activity and in this case lending should be classified according to the group's main activity.

In addition, balances relating to holding companies should be separately identified from relevant industry classifications in 'of which holding companies' sections on forms AD and AL. For details of SIC code classifications of holding companies, please see Section IV.2(b) SIC codes for the purpose of holding company classification.

Accounts relating to head offices should be classified according to the main activity of the group (as head offices activities are ancillary).

I.3(l) How to classify accounts held by 'in-house' financing companies of an industrial group

Many groups of industrial companies establish a separately incorporated financial subsidiary to manage the group's liquidity, and to raise finance and channel the proceeds to other companies within the group. In some groups, the holding company may play this role; guidance on classifying holding companies is given in sub-section I.3(k). The main feature that distinguishes 'in-house' companies from financial institutions is that the main activity of the latter is investing in securities and/or the granting of credit to unrelated customers.

Accounts relating to in-house financing companies should be classified similarly to those of holding companies, i.e. according to the main activity of the group. If the main activity of the group is unknown, then the financing subsidiary should be reported in 15M.

I.3(m) How to classify accounts of companies involved in more than one activity

It is important to be sure that one is dealing with the case of a single company, rather than a company group (see sub-section I.3(j) for how to classify the latter). For a single company, it may be necessary to classify its accounts to more than one category. (It would be rare, however, for a single company to have accounts classified to both financial corporations and non-financial corporations on form BE; the main problems are likely to arise in deciding on detailed classifications on forms AD and AL).

If it is known that the account is for a particular business purpose, then the account should be classified accordingly. If not, then one should determine the predominant activity of the company, and classify its account accordingly. If no single activity can be said to 'predominate', then choose the largest activity (in terms of its contribution to company turnover²).

I.3(n) How to classify a Nominee Company

Reporting institutions should classify deposits placed by nominee companies to the sector of the beneficial owner(s) where this can be determined with reasonable certainty. Where in fact the beneficial deposit is beneficially owned by the nominee, or where the circumstances are unclear, the deposit should be classified to Financial corporations other than monetary financial institutions.

I.3(o) How to classify an unincorporated business

For the industrial analysis, unincorporated businesses (for example sole traders and partnerships) should be classified on forms AD and AL according to the main activity of the business, unless the proprietor or a partner has borrowed on personal account, in which case the loan should be treated as lending to 'individuals and individual trusts' (Item 18). Limited partnerships and limited liability partnerships, which derive their status from the Limited Partnerships Act 1907 and Limited Liability Partnerships Act 2000 respectively, should be classified as financial or non-financial corporations.

Turning to the sector detail, on form BE, borrowing for personal account falls under the main sub-headings 'overdrafts' and 'loans and advances (incl. amounts receivable under finance leases) other than overdrafts' with separate items for borrowing by: individuals and individual trusts; unincorporated businesses other than unlimited liability partnerships (which includes sole traders); and non-profit institutions serving households. Other unincorporated businesses, i.e. unlimited liability partnerships, are required to be combined with either Financial corporations other than monetary financial institutions or Non-financial corporations on form BE.

Entries in form BE should allocate financial/non-financial unlimited liability partnerships to the 'parent' items for financial/non-financial corporations. Other unincorporated businesses from October 2007 onwards are reported separately in both the deposits and lending side of the Form BE.

For industrial analysis, merchants, non-financial brokers, importers and exporters should be included under the appropriate distributive trade item 7A, 7B or 7C on forms AD and AL as appropriate, and not under the industry or trade producing the goods in which they deal.

I.3(p) How to classify services supplied by central or local government or public corporations Care should be taken when classifying these accounts. In particular, accounts should not be classified according to ownership for industrial analysis on forms AD and AL, but according to the account's main activity. For example, Transport for London is classified under local government for sector analysis on Form BT. It should not be classified according to ownership for industrial analysis on forms AD and AL, ie. under item 11 'public administration and defence', but according to its main activity under item 9A 'transport and storage'. Similarly, local authority pension funds which are classified as within Financial corporations other than monetary financial institutions on Form BE should not be classified under item 11 'public administration and defence' for industrial analysis on forms AD and AL, but under item 16B 'pension funds'.

I.3(q) How to classify an account for a company in liquidation

The accounts of companies in liquidation should continue to be classified according to the industrial category to which they belonged before liquidation.

Similarly, banks in liquidation or administration should continue to be classified as banks for as long as they continue to appear on the list of institutions described as banks in this guide. After this point, they should be classified as the administrators in 10C.

I.3(r) Further Assistance

If you have still not been able to classify the account, or if any problem arises in this connection, you can contact the Bank of England (telephone 020 7601 5360 or email srdd_ms@bankofengland.co.uk).

¹An illustrative list of public corporations is available via weblink in part III, section 6.

²Measurements of turnover tend to be more stable within any trend change in the company's financial performance; profits, being more volatile, are a less reliable indicator for industrial classification.

Part II Residence

II.1 Introduction

For the purpose of all returns, the United Kingdom (UK) comprises the mainland of Great Britain and Northern Ireland. The Channel Islands and the Isle of Man (referred to elsewhere in the definitions as the UK offshore islands) do not form part of the UK for statistical purposes; this is in line with international standards¹.

In many returns it is necessary to classify assets and liabilities as relating to UK residents, and to non-residents. A small number of returns additionally break down those relating to non-residents by country of residence. This classification depends on the residence of the person or entity who is the immediate debtor or creditor [as normal, in determining the immediate debtor or creditor, transactions made through agencies and agents should be treated as though made directly with the principal (but payment of agency fees should be treated as a transaction with the agent)].

For the purpose of all returns Sections 2 to 5 below determine whether a person or entity is a 'UK resident' or a 'non-resident'. They also determine the country of residence of a non-resident. See Part I section 3 (in this guide) for some useful practical hints [especially sub-item I.3(d)]. Additional guidance is given in section 6 (below) for securities, bills, notes, ECGD lending and acceptances.

II.2 Individuals

(a) UK residents comprise:

- (i) Individuals permanently resident in the UK;
- (ii) All temporary residents from a country outside the UK who have stayed, or who intend to stay, in the UK for a year or more - except members of the armed forces and career and established government officials of a country outside the UK who are serving in military bases, embassies, etc. in the UK, together with their dependants;
- (iii) Individuals normally resident in the UK who are temporarily overseas for less than a year; and
- (iv) Members of the UK armed forces and career and established officials of HM Government serving in military bases, embassies, etc. overseas, together with their dependants.

(b) Non-residents comprise all those individuals who are not UK residents, namely:

- (i) Individuals permanently resident in a country outside the UK (including the Channel Islands and the Isle of Man);
- (ii) All temporary residents from the UK who have stayed, or who intend to stay, in a country outside the UK for a year or more - except members of the UK armed forces and career and established officials of HM Government serving in military bases, embassies, etc. overseas, together with their dependants;
- (iii) Individuals normally resident in a country outside the UK who are temporarily resident in the UK for less than a year; and
- (iv) Members of the armed forces and career and established government officials of a country outside the UK who are serving in military bases, embassies, etc. in the UK, together with their dependants.

The country of residence of a non-resident can be illustrated for each of the previously mentioned four categories using the following examples:

- (i) An individual permanently resident in Switzerland is a Swiss resident.
- (ii) An individual normally resident in the UK visiting Brazil for two years is a Brazilian resident (but a UK diplomat in Brazil is a UK resident).
- (iii) An individual normally resident in the United States but visiting London for six months is a US resident.
- (iv) A US air-force officer serving in the UK is a US resident, and a Spanish diplomat serving in London is a Spanish resident.

Note that residence status is not the same as nationality [e.g. a Frenchman staying in London for two years is a UK resident].

Also note that, while career and established government officials (and their dependants) serving abroad are residents of the country whose government they serve, the same does not apply to locally recruited staff of embassies etc. Thus, for example, a typist or interpreter permanently resident in the UK or staying in the UK for a year or more and recruited by the Spanish embassy in London remains an UK resident.

Also note that, while career and established government officials (and their dependants) serving abroad are residents of the country whose government they serve, the same does not apply to locally recruited staff of embassies etc. Thus, for example, a typist or interpreter permanently resident in the UK or staying in the UK for a year or more and recruited by the Spanish embassy in London remains an UK resident.

- (iii) Individuals normally resident in a country outside the UK who are temporarily resident in the UK for less than a year; and
- (iv) Members of the armed forces and career and established government officials of a country outside the UK who are serving in military bases, embassies, etc. in the UK, together with their dependants.

The country of residence of a non-resident can be illustrated for each of the previously mentioned four categories using the following examples:

- (i) An individual permanently resident in Switzerland is a Swiss resident.
- (ii) An individual normally resident in the UK visiting Brazil for two years is a Brazilian resident (but a UK diplomat in Brazil is a UK resident).
- (iii) An individual normally resident in the United States but visiting London for six months is a US resident.
- (iv) A US air-force officer serving in the UK is a US resident, and a Spanish diplomat serving in London is a Spanish resident.

Note that residence status is not the same as nationality [e.g. a Frenchman staying in London for two years is a UK resident].

Also note that, while career and established government officials (and their dependants) serving abroad are residents of the country whose government they serve, the same does not apply to locally recruited staff of embassies etc. Thus, for example, a typist or interpreter permanently resident in the UK or staying in the UK for a year or more and recruited by the Spanish embassy in London remains an UK resident.

II.3 Businesses

(a) UK residents comprise all enterprises which produce goods or provide services in the United Kingdom, namely:

- (i) UK-owned businesses' branches and subsidiaries located and operating in the UK;
- (ii) Overseas-owned businesses' branches and subsidiaries located and operating in the UK;
- (iii) A head office located in the UK from which an enterprise operating internationally (e.g. an air or shipping line) is administered.

(b) Non-residents comprise all enterprises which produce goods or provide services outside the United Kingdom, namely:

- (i) UK-owned businesses' branches and subsidiaries located and operating in a country outside the UK;
- (ii) Foreign-owned businesses' branches and subsidiaries located and operating in a country outside the UK;
- (iii) A head office located in a country outside the UK from which an enterprise operating internationally

(which may include the UK) is administered.

The country of residence of a non-resident business can be illustrated for each category above using the following examples:

- (i) The French branch of a UK company is a French resident;
- (ii) The French branch of a German company is a French resident;
- (iii) The New York head office of an international airline is a US resident

Note that:

UK branches of non-resident banks, which are listed as banks authorised to carry out deposit taking in the UK in this guide (and available on the Bank of England's website at www.bankofengland.co.uk/pru/Pages/authorisations/banksbuildingsocietieslist.aspx) are UK residents.

Non-resident offices of reporting institutions, as defined in III.10(a) of the Classification of Accounts guide accompanying the Banking Statistics 'Yellow' Folder, are non-residents.

UK representative offices of non-resident banks, being only agencies of their parent banks, are non-residents.

It is the country of location and operation, which determines the country of residence, not the country of ultimate ownership. Thus foreign branches of a company will have a different country of residence from the company itself.

An enterprise that merely has a 'brass-plate' presence in a country is not a resident of that country and the residence of each branch or subsidiary of that company will depend on its country of location and operation.

II.4 Governments, central monetary institutions and international organisations

HM Government and other UK public authorities, including HM Government diplomatic, military and other offices in other countries, are UK residents. Foreign central, state and local governments, including their diplomatic, military and other offices in the UK and elsewhere, are residents of the country which they serve.

A complete list of central monetary institutions by country is given in Part III Appendix 3, grouped by area. Note that the Bank for International Settlements is regarded as a resident of Switzerland, and the European Central Bank (ECB) as a resident of Germany, and are both regarded as non-resident central monetary institutions for UK statistical purposes. Please note that while the Kuwait Investment Authority is no longer classified as a central monetary institution vis-à-vis Kuwait its London branch, the Kuwait Investment Office, is regarded as a resident of Kuwait.

International organisations, including their branches or representatives in the United Kingdom, are non-residents. They should be classified as 'International Organisations' in returns where country breakdowns are required (such returns always have this category shown clearly as a separate item). Employees of international organisations who intend to be based in the UK for over one year are residents of the UK, although the organisations themselves are non-residents. The main international organisations are listed in Part III section 10.

II.5 Other

UK-based charities and other private non-profit-making entities

Such entities based in the United Kingdom are UK residents. Accounts for public subscription in the name of UK charities should be classified as accounts for UK residents, but a UK charity's account specifically for the running of an operation overseas (for example a hospital or school abroad) should be classified as an account for a resident of the country in which the operation is located.

Estates and Settlements

Executors or administrators of the estate of a deceased person who at the time of death was a resident of another country, and agents acting on inter-vivos settlements where the settler is a resident of another country, should be regarded as residents of that other country.

II.6 Securities, bills, notes, ECGD lending, and acceptances

When it is necessary to define a company security as issued either by a UK resident or a non-resident, this should be done on the basis of the location of the registered office of the issuing enterprise. Note, however, that the location of the registered office is synonymous with residence provided that the enterprise is operating in the country concerned on a permanent basis (i.e. for a period of over one year) and engages in economic activity (in this context the issuing of securities) which is subject to the fiscal and regulatory framework applicable in that country. For a security issued by a government or public corporation, the allocation is based on the residence of the issuing entity. The question of whether the security is denominated in sterling or any other currency is not relevant to this allocation.

A security which is in 'secondary' form, e.g. in the form of an allotment letter or of American, European, Global or Bearer Depository Receipts, should be attributed to the country of residence of the issuer of the underlying security. The same principle of 'looking through' should apply to 'repackaged' securities (i.e. securities issued by an entity, for example a bank, in respect of other, underlying securities held by that entity). This only applies if the purchaser of the 'repackaged' securities has a right to transfer to the underlying securities. If the purchaser does not have such a right, reporting institutions should not look through to the underlying securities.

A stripped security (strip) which remains the direct obligation of the original issuer should be attributed to the residency of the issuer of the original security. A strip that has been created and issued by an entity in its own name should be attributed to the residency of the issuer of the strip.

Bills should be classified according to the country of residence of the drawer, and notes according to that of the issuer; lending under ECGD guarantee should be allocated to the overseas country in which the debtor is resident; and bills accepted by the reporting institution itself should be reported as acceptances to the country of residence of the enterprise or entity on whose behalf the acceptance credit facility has been opened.

Appendix 1: Comparison of sector breakdown of non-residents on form BN and Form CC

² Under the ESA10 sector classification “General Government” embraces Central and Local Government; although Public Corporations remain within the public sector for economic analysis, they fall within the sector category “Non-financial Corporations”, for national accounts statistical purposes.

Appendix 2: Definition of: “intra-group” business

Appendix 3: List of Central Monetary Institutions

Appendix 4: List of International Organisations and reporting guidance

Detailed definitions

III.1 Bank of England – Central Bank

Comprises the Banking department, the Issue department and the Asset Purchase Facility of the Bank of England.

Although in principle all positions with the Bank of England relating to the management of the Exchange Equalisation Account ('EEA') should be excluded, as reporters are generally unlikely to be able to distinguish these from positions vis a vis the Banking and Issue departments, any EEA positions should be included under 'Bank of England'. The Bank will make the necessary adjustments to the aggregate data.

Note: ESA10 specifies the Central Bank as a separate sub-sector within 'total Monetary Financial Institutions'.

III.2 Monetary Financial Institutions other than the Bank of England

Comprises those institutions in the UK financial sector (other than the central bank) which are principally engaged in financial intermediation, and whose business is both to receive deposits and, for their own account, to grant loans and / or make investments in all kinds of securities.

III.2(a) UK banks

Embraces UK offices of banks authorised to carry out deposit taking in the UK.

There are two sub-categories:

(i) Firms with a Part IV permission under the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 to accept deposits but excluding (a) credit unions (b) firms whose permission to accept deposits is only for the purpose of carrying on insurance business (c) friendly societies and (d) building societies.

(ii) European Economic Area (EEA) credit institutions with permission under Schedule 3 of the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 to accept deposits through a UK branch.

Exclude

(i) Any institutions in the Channel Islands and the Isle of Man (see item III.10).

(ii) Banks authorised in the EEA entitled to establish branches in the UK but not accept deposits in the UK.

Lists of individual firms within this category can be found on the Bank of England website at www.bankofengland.co.uk/pr/Pages/authorisations/banksbuildingsocietieslist.aspx

Note: The section titled 'Banks authorised in the EEA entitled to establish branches in the UK but not accept deposits in the UK', currently on page 6 of the list, should not be classified as UK Banks.

III.2(b) UK building societies

This sub-category excludes those entities that have become banks;

Exclude branches of building societies located in the Channel Islands and the Isle of Man (see item III.10).

A list can be found at www.bankofengland.co.uk/prd/Pages/authorisations/banksbuildingsocietieslist.aspx

III.2(c) Monetary financial institutions other than banks and building societies

This category was included on the balance sheet and associated forms in advance of clarification from the European Central Bank (ECB) as to which institutions this should include. The list, now issued by the ECB (available on the internet at www.ecb.int), clarifies that, in the UK, this category comprises money market mutual funds (as already identified in the industrial analysis on Forms AD and AL). As these funds are small, and to avoid costs of reprogramming, the present reporting arrangements should continue until further notice i.e no accounts should be classified as 'Monetary financial institutions other than banks and building societies' on any return. The approximate equivalent of the old sub-category 'Other financial institutions' is 'Financial Corporations other than monetary financial institutions' (Form BE) which is part of 'Other UK residents' on Form BT.

III.3 Financial Corporations other than Monetary Financial Institutions

Includes all financial limited and unlimited liability partnerships resident on the UK mainland and which are engaged principally in financial activities. These are also known as financial quasi corporations. Insurance brokers, loan brokers & financial planning consultants, salvage administrators and loss adjusters (but not unincorporated businesses - see comment below). This category is sometimes referred to as 'other financial corporations' (OFCs).

Note : In practice, there are unlikely to be many unlimited partnerships engaged principally in financial activities, if any, other than those classified as financial auxiliaries.

Other financial corporations (OFCs) are classified as either intermediate OFCs (IOFCs) or non-intermediate OFCs (NIOFCs):

i) IOFCs mainly provide intermediation services to banks and building societies and are defined as: non-bank credit grantors; mortgage and housing credit corporations; bank holding companies; securitisation special purpose vehicles; other activities auxiliary to financial intermediation and 'other financial intermediaries' belonging to the same financial group. This definition is in line with the industrial items reported on the Forms AD and AL: 15B, 15E, 15H, 15L, 15MA and 17B, respectively.

ii) NIOFCs are defined as those OFCs not falling under the definition above, and include securities dealers, insurance companies and pension funds, financial leasing corporations, investment & unit trusts, fund managers and other financial intermediaries excluding intergroup transactions.

(a) Credit Unions

Credit Unions are classified as Financial Corporations other than Monetary Financial Institutions.

A searchable list of credit unions can be found at the website of the Association of British Credit Unions

Limited (www.abcul.org/about/abcul-credit-unions).

These are financial co-operatives which accumulate members' savings and provide members with low-cost credit. A significant number of credit unions draw their membership from employees of public sector organisations or of industrial or commercial companies.

(b) Money market mutual funds

Unit trusts authorised by the FCA under the terms of the Financial Services and Markets Act 2012; these are collective investment schemes that raise funds by issuing shares or units to the public. The proceeds are invested primarily in money market instruments, MMF shares or units, transferable debt instruments with a residual maturity of not more than one year, bank deposits and instruments that pursue a rate of return that approaches the interest rates of money market instruments. These were formally referred to as 'money market mutual funds'.

Money market funds and non-money market fund collective investment schemes (III.3(c)) together comprise the category 'collective investment schemes'. Note that this list is illustrative, not exhaustive.

Include the following:

Aberdeen Investment Funds ICVC
Aviva Investors Cash Fund
Baillie Gifford Cash Fund
Blackrock Cash Fund
CF ICF Optima Cash Fund
Close Capital Account Fund
Elite Income Plan Cash Trust
F&C Money Markets Fund
F&C Sterling Enhance Cash Fund
Fidelity Cash Fund
Fidelity MoneyBuilder Cash ISA Fund
Fidelity Gross Accumulating Cash Fund

GLG Cash Fund
Henderson Cash Fund
Henderson Enhanced Sterling Liquidity Fund
Henderson Institutional Cash Fund
IM Octopus Cash Fund
Jupiter Cash Fund
Legal and General Cash Trust
Premier UK Money Market Fund
Royal London Cash Plus Fund
Standard Life Cash Fund
Wesleyan Cash Fund
Malborough Cash Trust

(c) Non-money market fund collective investment schemes

These are defined as collective investment schemes such as trusts, funds and similar finance entities including activities of investment trusts, unit trusts, open-ended investment companies, property unit trusts and real estate investment trusts, not included in 'money market funds'. Their business is to receive investment fund shares or units which are not close substitutes for deposits, and on their own account, to make investments primarily in financial assets other than short-term financial assets and in non-financial assets (usually real estate). These were previously referred to as 'investment trusts and unit trusts on the UK mainland'.

(d) Factoring companies and discounters, a list of members can be found on the Asset Based Finance Association's website at www.abfa.org.uk/members/membersList.asp.

(e) Insurance corporations and pension funds

These comprise:

- (i) Insurance companies, including those institutions specialising in marine and credit insurance, and reinsurance; also, benefit funds and provident funds; e.g. Equitas Ltd. Include BUPA Health Insurance (but not BUPA Hospitals – see non-financial corporations)
- (ii) Friendly societies, both 'collecting' and 'non-collecting'
- (iii) Pension funds and superannuation funds (including those of public corporation and local government employees), but not unfunded and notionally funded government pension schemes.

Excluded are:

Lloyd's Underwriters, which should be classified under item III.8(b) – 'Unincorporated businesses other than unlimited liability partnerships'.

Insurance brokers; if unlimited liability partnerships, should be classified under item III.3 'Financial quasi-corporations' and; if sole traders, should be classified under item III.8(b) 'Unincorporated businesses other than unlimited liability partnerships'.

(f) Leasing companies

Include here specialist leasing companies principally dealing in finance leases. Companies dealing primarily in operating leases should be classified as Non-financial corporations

III.3(g) Securities dealers

Due to the inherent problems of assessing the main business activity of firms registered to deal in securities, this list is intended to be illustrative, not exhaustive and therefore may also contain some firms which are primarily involved in activities other than securities dealing, for example, fund managers.

Institutions, including members of the London Stock Exchange, regulated by the Financial Conduct Authority acting as principals and on behalf of clients in buying and selling securities.

III.3(h) Financial Auxiliaries

Comprises all financial institutions in the UK which are principally engaged in activities which are closely related to financial intermediation, but which do not include the function of financial intermediation itself. Included are:

- (i) Insurance brokers, loan brokers & financial planning consultants, salvage administrators and loss adjusters (but not unincorporated businesses – see comment below)
- (ii) Corporations providing infrastructure for financial markets: the London Stock Exchange, the London International Financial Futures & Options Exchange (LIFFE) which now embraces the London Commodities Exchange, International Petroleum Exchange, London Metal Exchange.
- (iii) Fund management companies – acting for pension funds and other clients' investment portfolios
- (iv) Supervisory authorities of financial intermediaries and markets, but excluding the Financial Conduct

Authority which is classified to UK Public Corporations. (v)

The Corporation of Lloyd's

(vi) Clearing Houses, such as LCH Clearnet Ltd (and its RepoClear clearing facility) and Crest Co.

Note: All limited and unlimited liability partnerships principally engaged in activities auxiliary to financial intermediation should be classified under item III.3, above,. Financial quasi-corporations ; all sole traders should be classified under item III.8(b), below, Unincorporated businesses other than unlimited liability partnerships

III.3(i) Other financial institutions

(a) Institutions not in the UK banking sector, whose main function is to extend credit abroad.

See page 5 of the FSA's bank list (www.fsa.gov.uk/library/other_publications/banks/index.shtml).

(b) Bank Holding companies: holding companies of UK banking sector institutions where the activities of the holding company are primarily orientated towards the UK banking sector.

III.4 Central Government

Comprises UK government departments, including Northern Ireland government departments, bodies not administered as part of government departments but subject to ministerial or departmental control, and accounts controlled by UK government departments and agencies located overseas. A list of these entities can be found at www.ons.gov.uk/economy/nationalaccounts/uksectoraccounts/datasets/publicsectorclassificationguide

For further details about UK national accounts classifications, please see

www.ons.gov.uk/economy/nationalaccounts/uksectoraccounts/articles/nationalaccountssectorclassifications/december2015

III.5 Local Government

Comprises London borough councils, county and district councils in Northern Ireland, parish, town and new unitary authorities in England and Wales, and district, island and regional councils in Scotland, together with those attached statutory departments, (e.g. gas departments in Northern Ireland, water service departments in Scotland). Also those bodies formed on 1 April 1986 to take over the assets and functions of the former metropolitan councils and the Greater London Council (e.g. residuary bodies, joint police authorities, joint police and fire boards).

A list of these entities can be found at www.ons.gov.uk/economy/nationalaccounts/uksectoraccounts/datasets/publicsectorclassificationguide

For further details about UK national accounts classifications, please see

www.ons.gov.uk/economy/nationalaccounts/uksectoraccounts/articles/nationalaccountssectorclassifications/december2015.

III.6 Public Corporations

Public corporations are corporate bodies, sometimes with plc or Ltd in their title. Ownership by government may be total, as in the case of those corporations established by Act of Parliament, or through majority share-holdings. Public control is over broad aspects of policy; public corporations are free to manage their day to day operations independently. Trust ports in Northern Ireland and ports belonging to public corporations continue to be classed as 'public corporations', as do certain airport companies, which were set up by local authorities under the terms of the 1986 Airports Act. A list of these entities can be found at www.ons.gov.uk/economy/nationalaccounts/uksectoraccounts/datasets/publicsectorclassificationguide.

For further details about UK national accounts classifications, please see

www.ons.gov.uk/economy/nationalaccounts/uksectoraccounts/articles/nationalaccountssectorclassifications/december2015

III.7 Non-financial Corporations other than Public Corporations

Limited, unlimited, chartered, statutory and other corporate bodies incorporated in the mainland of Great Britain and Northern Ireland which are not classified as financial corporations, public corporations, or within central government or local government.

Note: Effectively corresponds to the coverage of 'Industrial and commercial companies' prior to the Banking Statistics Review implemented in 1997. But please note that any companies incorporated in the Channel Islands or in the Isle of Man should be classified under item III.10, below, non-residents. Insurance broking companies should be classified under item III.3.(h) financial auxiliaries. Note also that companies dealing primarily in operating leases should be classified under this heading.

A list of these entities can be found at www.ons.gov.uk/ons/publications/re-reference-tables.html?edition=tcm:77-224305

Includes all non-financial limited and unlimited liability partnerships on the UK mainland engaged principally in non-financial activities, these are also known as non-financial quasi corporations, such as:

Accountancy partnerships [NB exclude any major accounting firms which are corporate bodies, as these should be classified to item III.7]

Architectural partnerships
Legal partnerships (Solicitors)
Management consulting partnerships
Medical and dental partnerships

Other small business partnerships, including formal husband and wife partnerships; e.g. retail corner-shops and farming enterprises.

Note: This sub-category is restricted to non-financial business partnerships; other unincorporated businesses should be classified under item III.8(b) below, unincorporated businesses other than unlimited liability partnerships.

For further details about UK national accounts classifications, please see

www.ons.gov.uk/economy/nationalaccounts/uksectoraccounts/articles/nationalaccountssectorclassifications/december2015.

III.8 Households and Individual Trusts

Is sub-divided into:

III.8(a) Individuals & Individual Trusts

Individuals and individual trusts (created for named beneficiaries) resident on the UK mainland.

III.8(b) Unincorporated Businesses other than Unlimited Liability Partnerships

Unincorporated businesses resident on the UK mainland other than unlimited liability partnerships: (essentially only sole traders)

Note : Lloyd's underwriters are included but exclude corporate bodies - e.g. Equitas Ltd (see item III.3(e)).

For further details about UK national accounts classifications, please see

www.ons.gov.uk/economy/nationalaccounts/uksectoraccounts/articles/nationalaccountssectorclassifications/december2015.

III.9 Non-profit institutions serving households

Non-profit making bodies serving individuals, located in the UK mainland. For details about the methodology and sources for non-profit institutions serving households (NPISH), including the type of organisations included in the sector, see www.ons.gov.uk/ons/rel/naa1-rd/national-accounts-articles/revised-methodology-and-sources-for-non-profit-institutions-serving-households/index.html.

Please note that the NPISH sector is subject to classification updates. Classification updates to UK national accounts can be found at www.ons.gov.uk/economy/nationalaccounts/uksectoraccounts/articles/nationalaccountssectorclassifications/december2015.

For further details about UK national accounts classifications, please see

www.ons.gov.uk/economy/nationalaccounts/uksectoraccounts/articles/nationalaccountssectorclassifications/december2015.

III.10 Non-residents [Rest of the World]

This section explains the term non-resident as well as information on where to include data on the following non-resident entities for statistical purposes:

- a. Deposit-taking corporations of which:
 - i) Intra-group
 - ii) Central Monetary Institutions
 - iii) Other deposit-taking corporations
- b. Other financial corporations
- c. General government
- d. Non-financial corporations
- e. Households (including NPISH)

Note: These changes do not affect form ELS which is governed by the Cash Ratio Deposits (Eligible Liabilities) Order 1998, as amended. See form ELS definitions for more details.

III.10(a) Deposit-taking corporations

As defined in the System of National Accounts (see www.unstats.un.org/unsd/nationalaccount/docs/SNA2008.pdf p76), this category refers to non-resident banks and other non-resident financial institutions whose business is to receive deposits and/or close substitutes for deposits (such as short-term certificates of deposit) from entities other than deposit-taking corporations and, for their own account (at least in economic terms), to grant credit and/or make investments in securities. Non-resident deposit-taking corporations include central monetary institutions (CMIs) but exclude money market funds.

In order to determine whether or not a non-resident financial institution is regarded as a deposit-taking corporation, reference should be made to the list available for the country where the counterparty is located ('home country' definition). Lists may be available from the Central Bank of the country where the counterparty is located or from national regulatory or supervisory bodies in the country of location.

A list of credit institutions located in the EU is available from the ECB: https://www.ecb.europa.eu/stats/money/mfi/general/html/monthly_list.en.html

In the case of the ECB list, for the purpose of classifying non-resident financial institutions, the term 'credit institution' can be used as de facto 'deposit-taking corporations', given the nature of the definition of 'credit institutions'. Central monetary institutions (CMIs) should always be classified as deposit-taking corporations, except on Forms C1 and CE where CMIs are classified as public sector. Money market funds should not be classified as deposit-taking corporations.

In addition, more general guidance can be obtained from the most recently available Bankers' Almanac.

In general, this category will also include non-resident credit unions, provided that they are included in the list of deposit-taking corporations for the country concerned.

(i) Intra-group

“Intra-group” business here refers to business with non-resident deposit-taking corporations that are part of the same group as the reporting institution. This is further defined in Appendix 2.

(ii) Central Monetary Institutions (CMIs)

The list in Appendix 3 shows the Central Monetary Institutions for most of the countries in Forms CC, CE, CL and C1 by area.

Note: on Forms CC, CL and BN these will be included within non-resident deposit-taking corporations, and within the separate sector split of Central Monetary Institutions, while on Forms C1 and CE they are reported within public sector. See the individual form definitions for more details.

Please note that figures for the Bank for International Settlements (BIS) should always be combined with those for Switzerland, and figures for the European Central Bank (ECB) should always be combined with those for Germany.

(iii) Other deposit-taking corporations

Refers to non-resident deposit-taking corporations that are neither intra-group nor Central Monetary Institutions.

III.10(b) Other financial corporations

Comprises all non-resident financial corporations other than deposit-taking corporations included in III.10(a). These are defined analogously to the definition of UK ‘financial corporations other than deposit-taking corporations in III.3, including all non-resident money market funds, non-money market fund collective investment schemes, factoring companies and discounters, insurance corporations and pension funds, leasing companies, securities dealers, financial auxiliaries, other financial institutions and also banking international organisations (a list of banking international organisations is provided in Appendix 4)

Investment in collective investment schemes are collected on Forms BN and CC. Collective investment schemes comprise money market funds and non-money market fund collective investment schemes.

Money market funds (MMFs) are collective investment schemes that raise funds by issuing shares or units to the public. The proceeds are invested primarily in money market instruments, MMF shares or units, transferable debt instruments with a residual maturity of not more than one year, bank deposits and instruments that pursue a rate of return that approaches the interest rates of money market instruments.

Non-money market fund collective investment schemes are defined as collective investment schemes such as trusts, funds and similar finance entities including activities of investment trusts, unit trusts, open-ended investment companies, property unit trusts and real estate investment trusts, not included in ‘money market funds’. Their business is to receive investment fund shares or units which are not close substitutes for deposits, and on their own account, to make investments primarily in financial assets other than short-term financial assets and in non-financial assets (usually real estate).

III.10(c) General government

Includes the central government, state government, local government and social security funds. Central banks, other official monetary authorities [as defined under CMIs III.10(a)(ii)] and public corporations are not part of the general government sector.

III.10(d) Non-financial corporations

Comprise privately- and publicly-owned corporations as well as unincorporated enterprises that function as if they were corporations, such as partnerships and the branches of foreign corporations.

III.10(e) Households including NPISH

Includes individuals, families, non-quasi-corporations or enterprises owned by household members and non-profit institutions serving households (NPISHs) such as charities, religious institutions, trade unions and consumer associations.

Appendix 1: Sector breakdown comparison of non-residents for form BN and Form CC

The sector breakdown of non-resident business contained on Form BN and Form CC are similar, but there are some differences. The table shows the two breakdowns.

Appendix 2: Definition of “intra-group” business

“Intra-group” business refers to business with entities that are part of the same group as the reporting institution. This is used to define:

- intra-group business with other UK resident banks on Form BT (see items 2BG, 3BG, 6BG, 23DG and 30BG)
- intra-group business with non-resident deposit-taking corporations on Form BN (see items 2JAG, 3JAG, 6JAG, 23KG and 30JAG) and on Form CC/CL.
- intra-group business with non-resident other financial corporations on Form BN (see items 2JBG, 3JBG, 6JBG, 29EAG and 30JBG).

Two entities are deemed to be part of the same group if at least one of the following conditions is met:

- a) The reporting institution owns more than half of the other group member it is undertaking business with;
- b) More than half of the reporting institution is owned by the group member it is undertaking business with;
- c) The reporting institution controls the composition of the board of directors of the group member it is undertaking business with, or
- d) The composition of the reporting institution’s own board of directors is subject to control from the group member it is undertaking business with.

Two entities are also understood to be part of the same group if:

- e) The ownership or control is established indirectly, via a holding company or similar institution (for instance if the reporting institution owns a majority stake in a holding company which then has a majority interest in another entity); or
- f) The reporting institution and the counterparty are ultimately owned or controlled by a common company.

Non-resident branches and subsidiaries of the reporting institution are included in “intra-group” non-residents. Similarly, non-resident branches and subsidiaries of other entities that are part of the group, should also be classified as “intra-group”.

Associate companies, where less than half of the nominal value of the total ordinary share capital is held by the reporting institution, are not considered to be part of the same group.

The reporting institution should report "intra-group" business in accordance with the appropriate sector classification of the counterparty.

¹ Under the ESA10 sector classification “General Government” embraces Central and Local Government; although Public Corporations remain within the public sector for economic analysis, they fall within the sector category “Non-financial Corporations”, for national accounts statistical purposes.

Part IV Industrial Classification

IV.1 Introduction

This section describes the industrial categories under which lending to, and deposit-taking from, the public and private sectors are classified on Forms AL and AD, respectively. Lending and deposit taking are grouped into 18 broad industrial categories, which are based on the Office for National Statistics' Standard Industrial Classification of Economic Activities (SIC) 2007.

The AD and AL forms to be used from January 2011 reporting introduce more box items and use SIC 2007 codes resulting in some industrial categories changing box items. A detailed account of the current categories and changes from the previous versions of forms AD and AL are set out in section IV.2.

Industries are classified regardless of who owns or operates them. Thus, industrial establishments owned or operated by the central government are classified in the same way as those privately-owned and should not be included under 'public administration and defence'; for example, transport services operated by local authorities are included under 'transport, storage and communication' and not 'public administration and defence'.

An account which covers more than one activity should be classified according to the main activity of the customer.

Where the customer is an industrial holding company whose prime function is to raise finance on behalf of other companies within the group, the loan should be classified according to the main activity of the ultimate beneficiary, and we request that reporters allocate these on a best endeavours basis.

A subsidiary whose prime function is to raise finance on behalf of other group companies should also be classified according to the main activity of the beneficiary. Where the ultimate beneficiary is a financial corporation, the subsidiary should be classified to item 15M 'other financial intermediaries not elsewhere covered'

Note that this classification is restricted to enterprises in the domestic UK economy and excludes those incorporated in the UK offshore islands. Also excluded are extra-territorial organisations and bodies such as the Commonwealth Secretariat and the Crown Agents for Overseas Governments and Administrations.

Further guidance about the UK Standard Industrial Classification of Economic Activities may be obtained from the Office for National Statistics website:

www.ons.gov.uk/methodology/classificationsandstandards/ukstandardindustrialclassification/ofeconomicactivities/uksic2007.

In situations where it is not clear which industry category should be used, further guidance may be sought by contacting the Statistics and Regulatory Data Division (telephone: 020 7601 5360 or email: srdd_ms@bankofengland.co.uk)

IV.2(b) SIC codes for the purpose of holding company classification

As noted in part I.3(k) of this guide, holding companies should be separately identified, where possible. It may be worthwhile applying two SIC codes, the first corresponding to the industry within which the ultimate beneficiary of the holding company funds is primarily active (in accordance with the industrial categories in part IV.2(a)), with the latter capturing the corresponding holding company SIC code. The below holding company SIC codes breakdown types of holding companies by ONS sector, rather than the more detailed industrial breakdown. This table can therefore be used to aid the mapping from a known industry SIC code onto the correct holding company sector SIC code.

Please note the appropriate holding company SIC codes may also be viewed on the new AD/AL forms which can be found at: www.bankofengland.co.uk/statistics/Pages/reporters/defs/default.aspx

Holding company SIC code	Description	BoE AD / AL box codes
64.20/1	Activities of agricultural holding companies	1, 2
64.20/2	Activities of production holding companies	3, 4, 5
64.20/3	Activities of construction holding companies	6
64.20/4	Activities of distribution holding companies	7
64.20/5	Activities of financial services holding companies	15, 16, 17
64.20/9	Activities of other holding companies (not including agricultural, production, construction, distribution and financial services holding companies) n.e.c.	8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14

Part IV.3 Relationship between sector and industrial classifications

The two systems of classification are basically independent of each other. However, a number of banking accounts fall within the bounds of both systems and need to be assigned to a sector and to an industrial category. The main exclusions are accounts for all non-residents and institutions included in the economic grouping 'Monetary financial institutions' (see part III of this guide), which embraces UK banks and UK building societies, which are not included in the industrial classification.

The following groups of accounts are common to both systems:

- In the sector components, (see Part III of this guide), item 3 ('financial corporations other than monetary financial Institutions') is equal³ to the aggregate of the following items in the industrial classification (see Part IV, section 1):
Items 15A to 15M (specific activities embraced within total other financial intermediation);
Item 16 (insurance companies and pension funds); and Item 17 (activities auxiliary to financial intermediation).
- Item 8(a) in the sector definitions, 'Individuals and individual trusts' has broadly the same coverage as the sum of the three individual categories in the industrial classification, items 18A to 18C. Note that Lloyd's names fall within the sector Households and individual trusts; however, their business activities are classified within Insurance companies and pension funds for industrial classification purposes - see also CA IV.

An illustration of the relationship between the two systems of classification is given in the following table. This shows where, if at all, accounts classified under sectors (rows in the table) can be expected to appear in industrial categories (grouped into columns in the table).

A single asterisk in a particular column / row indicates that accounts of entities in the sector classification could also appear in the group of industrial categories indicated.

A dash indicates that there is no relationship between the sector/sub-sector and the industrial classification.

³ The equation 'Financial corporations other than monetary financial institutions' = Items 15A+B+C+D+E+F+G+H+L+M+ 16 + 17 (forms AD/AL) is only approximate. Any sole traders conducting business relating to financial activity (e.g. Insurance brokers) will be classified to item 17 in the industrial analysis, but they will be classified under "Households and individual trusts" in the sector analysis. See part III, section 8.
